

REMARKS/ARGUMENTS

Claim 1 stands rejected under 35 U.S.C. §112(2). Applicant has amended this claim, and thus this rejection is overcome.

Claims 1-12 and 18 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rapaport et al, U.S. Patent No. 5,890,152. Claim 1 as amended now clearly defines over Rapaport et al, and a notice to this effect is respectfully requested. Support for Applicant's amendment is found in Applicant's specification on page 21, lines 11-30. Applicant submits that Rapaport fails to teach or suggest creating a visual event, but rather, simply records electrical data, such as scrolling inputs, as a result of a browser event that causes a change in the visual stimuli which is not a visual event.

Claims 13-15 and 21 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hochmuth, U.S. Patent No. 6,046,741 in view of Rapaport et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,890,152. Claim 13 as amended is believed to now clearly define over Hochmuth in view of Rapaport et al.

With respect to independent Claim 13 as amended, there is recited "creating a visual event as a result of a browser event that causes a change in the visual stimuli..." The prior art fails to teach or suggest that the change in visual stimuli is a result of a browser event that causes the change. Accordingly, Claim 13 is believed to be allowable over the cited prior art as well.

With respect to independent Claim 21 as amended, there is recited the limitation "verifying a changed in the displayed visual stimuli resulting from a browser event that causes the change." The prior art fails to teach or suggest the verification of the change in the displayed visual stimuli as a result of a browser event that causes the change. Accordingly, Claim 21 is believed to be allowable over the cited prior art as well.

Applicant respectfully sets forth that all pending Claims 1-21 are believed to define over the cited prior art, and a notice of allowance is respectfully requested.

No additional fees are believed to be due, however, the Examiner is authorized to debit Applicant's Deposit Account #50-1752 if any additional fees are required.

If the Examiner has any further issues, the Examiner is encouraged to contact the undersigned to resolve these matters by phone where possible.

Respectfully submitted,
